

In 1960s, <sup>the</sup> Ku Klux Klan ~~an~~ was an extreme organization of racism that used violent measure<sup>s</sup> to threaten and oppress the voices calling for racial equality. Among the voices, Malcolm X called for self defence with potential <sup>and Muslims</sup> ~~aiming for~~ audience of Black people, he advocated that they should fight back <sup>against</sup> the Klan and condemned ~~the~~ inaction<sup>specifically in the African American community</sup>. By skillfully applying persuasive language style, use of contrast and metaphor, with

~~so~~ consistent logic, Malcolm X's speech effectively reaches his aim of calling people to action?

— of rousing people to actively defend themselves/their rights

First, Malcolm X employs ~~the~~ evocative language style to engage and persuade audience into action. This is shown by his use of lexical cluster to reinforce the ~~the~~ <sup>strong</sup> meaning and render sentiments.

For example, when describing ~~the people from~~ <sup>the Klan</sup>, he used a series of words with similar meaning. "Brutal", "exploit", "violent", "oppression", ~~etc~~ are applied in a row, which makes the readers easily <sup>feel a sense</sup> ~~inter that~~ of anger. This stands in dramatic contrast with the clusters of "deeds, <sup>conscious</sup> behavior", "intention" to describe Muslims' way to judge people.

By ~~contrast~~ using lexical ~~clusters~~ here, <sup>malcolm X (the speaker)</sup> the author cleverly contrasts and creates ~~tension~~ <sup>tension</sup> between klan's "barbarism" and Muslim/black people's "justice". This draws a clear line between the allies and the enemy for the audience, creating a sense of common identity or creed ~~for~~, ~~the~~ so the readers are emotionally ready ~~to~~ to accept the points later in the speech, ~~and~~ invoking their potential energy for action. ~~In addition~~ In addition, the author also applies ~~parallel~~ sentences with ~~parallel~~ <sup>parallel</sup> syntax to ~~emphasize~~ <sup>em</sup> his point to take action of ~~self~~ self-defence. ~~There~~ ~~But~~ When

<sup>speaker</sup> the author condemns ~~the~~ the bringing up the point of attitude of being "objective, calm...", he ~~utilizes~~ <sup>states</sup> states. "There's a time to be cool and a time to be hot. ...a time to love and a time to hate."

Here, "time" is repeated. ~~and~~ The author wants to ~~emphasize~~ <sup>em</sup> the attitude of dealing with racism should change according to situation. The contrasting of "cool" and "hot", "hate" and "love" — each takes a step in tension and more dramatic sentiment. — further implies that ~~people~~ it is time to ~~take~~ ~~action~~ action and being active against the oppression. The readers can ~~then~~ be ready to take the active role, even they yes, this is a subtle allusion to Ecclesiastes which is a book in the Old Testament. Malcolm X is using this biblical allusion to convince his followers of his philosophy that their religious scriptures advocate taking a defensive stance where the warrants it to be necessary.

Also mention the use of pronouns, such as "I and you" versus "They" to further delineate the division between these groups.

are passive thinkers. ~~Further~~ ~~I~~ While contrasts raise <sup>emotions</sup> sentiments, imagery pushes the speech to climax. The <sup>speaker</sup> author repeated the scene of Klan knocking a black woman on the ground two times. "By using the word

"throw", the <sup>speaker demonstrates</sup> author ~~shows~~ the violence of the Klan. "The repeat of (Malcolm X)

"on the ground" further showcases the brutality. This brutality makes the audience ~~was~~ ~~desire to~~ anticipate action to save the woman, but the following scene of "standing around and doing nothing" sharply conflicts with the black men expectation. The <sup>speaker added that</sup> author ~~emphasize~~ the word "full-grown" to ~~show~~ further condemns inaction and <sup>being</sup> illustrates that taking action is mature. The conflict and absurdity is further developed as <sup>Malcolm X</sup> author repeated the excuse for inaction. "Overcome them with our capacity to love" with a rhetorical question in between.

This <sup>prompts</sup> ~~encourages~~ the reader <sup>to</sup> rethink the ~~feasible~~ way they deal with violent racism, and the <sup>audience</sup> ~~readers~~ naturally concludes "love" is not the way.

Therefore, by using a mix of contrast with lexical clusters and repetition and imagery, the author effectively invokes strong sentiment ~~for~~ <sup>that inspires</sup> action.

This is another allusion to Martin Luther King's non-violent philosophy which Malcolm X sees as being a passive bystander unwilling to defend an vulnerable woman who has been unfairly beaten

<sup>speaker</sup>
the ~~author~~ effectively ~~is~~ advocates for ~~an~~ active defence to achieve equality.

§ Here/In the conclusion try to address the implications of this text. In the aftermath of the Blacklives Matter protests after the murder of George Floyd, racism and senseless brutality against innocent black men still persists, making Malcolm X's speech all the more relevant.

Great response that shows a clear understanding of the text and its techniques. Your analysis is often insightful and consistently supported by textual evidence. Your organization of ideas and use of language are accurate. Overall, this is a very well written paper 1.

The following text is taken from Humor That Works, a company that gives businesses advice, materials and workshops on how to create a happy and effective workplace.

HUMOR AT WORK:

How's & Why's of Workplace Humor

Using humor at work can make you more productive, less stressed, & happier, and yet only

1/3rd of workers use it consistently.

Here's why you should use humor in the workplace.

THE NEED FOR HUMOR AT WORK

Americans feel stressed about their jobs

Americans are unsatisfied with their job

Americans struggle to stay happy

BENEFITS OF HUMOR

When challenged with a problem, people who watched a comedy video beforehand were 3.75 times more likely to solve the problem!

Humor can increase happiness by up to 42%

Laughing for 10-15 minutes can...

Increase Your Heart Rate By 20%

Improve Blood Flow By 50%

and burn as many calories as...

5 MINUTES
OF AEROBIC EXERCISE

10 MINUTES
OF DANCING

15 MINUTES
OF MILKING A COW

HUMOR & HAPPINESS

Humor helps connect people by building trust, reducing status differentials, diffusing conflict, and creating positive shared experiences that bring us closer together.

And people with 3 close friends at work are 96% more likely to be satisfied with their lives.

WHY HUMOR AT WORK IS MISSING

With so many benefits to using humor, why do only 33% of workers use it?

★ THE PEOPLE WANT HUMOR ★

81% of employees say a fun workplace would make them more productive.

97% of professionals believe it's important that managers have a sense of humor

98% of CEOs prefer job candidates with a sense of humor

HUMOR (n.) = a comic, absurd, or incongruous quality causing amusement

HOW TO HUMOR

* Note: In the United States it is common to print photographs of missing persons on milk cartons.

Guiding question: In what ways does this infographic use different features to achieve its purpose?

TEXT B: Speech

On February 13, 1965, Malcolm X's home in New York City was bombed. He and his family were not hurt and he decided to keep a longstanding speaking commitment at Detroit, Michigan, arriving the next day to give the speech below at the Ford Auditorium. This proved, however, to be his last public appearance. One week later on February 21, Malcolm X was assassinated as he began to give a speech in Harlem. The following is an excerpt from this nearly 30-minute speech.

I was in a house last night that was bombed, my own. anecdote lexical It isn't something that made me lose confidence in what I am doing, because my wife understands and I have children, and even in their young age they understand. I think they would rather have a father who will take a stand in the face of any kind of reaction from narrow-minded people, rather than to compromise and later on have to grow up in shame and in disgrace.

Whenever you and I are discussing our problems we need to be very objective, very cool, calm, collected.

emphasis But that doesn't mean we should always be.
There's a time to be cool and a time to be hot.
There's a time to love and a time to hate.

I am not a racist in any form whatsoever. I don't believe in any form of racism. I don't believe in any form of discrimination or segregation. I believe in Islam. I am a Muslim. And there's nothing wrong with being a Muslim, nothing wrong with the religion of Islam.

pronoun The yardstick that is used by the Muslim to measure another man is not the man's color but the man's deeds, the man's conscious behavior, the man's intentions. And when you use that as a standard of measurement or judgment, you never go wrong. I'm not in a society that practices brotherhood. I'm in a society that might preach it on Sunday, but they don't practice it on any day. It is a society controlled primarily by racists and segregationists who are in positions of power. They exercise forms of brutal oppression against dark-skinned people in any place on this earth where they're trying to exploit and oppress. They are violent when their interests are at stake. allusion

But when you and I want just a little bit of freedom, we're supposed to be nonviolent.

They're violent.

contrast But when it comes time for you and me to protect ourselves against lynchings, they tell us to be nonviolent. That's a shame. And when somebody stands up and talks like I just did, they say, "Why, he's advocating violence!" Isn't that what they say? mocking imagery I saw on the television where they took this black woman down in Selma, Alabama, knocked her right down on the ground, dragging her down the street. You saw it, you're trying to pretend like you didn't see it 'cause you knew you should've done something about it and didn't. It showed the sheriff and his henchmen throwing this black woman on the ground -- on the ground. And negro men standing around doing nothing about it saying, "Well, let's overcome them with our capacity to love."

What kind of phrase is that?

"Overcome them with our capacity to love."

② pathos style
lexical lang
emphasis by parallel sentences

③ pathos contrast - imagery violent vs nonviolent metaphor

① logos/ethos: from anecdote to "lang" criticize press psyche play / week

imagery again

And then it disgraces the rest of us, because all over the world the picture is splashed showing a black woman with some white brutes, with their knees on her holding her down, and full-grown black men standing around watching it.

You can't ever reach a man if you don't speak his language.

If a man speaks the language of brute force, you can't come to him with peace. Why, good night! He'll break you in two, as he has been doing all along. If a man speaks French, you can't speak to him in German. If he speaks Swahili, you can't communicate with him in Chinese. You have to find out what this man speaks. And once you know his language, learn how to speak his language, and he'll get the point. There'll be some dialogue.

You know the language the Klan speaks.

It is a duty, it's your and my duty as human beings, it is our duty to our people, to organize ourselves and let the government know that if they don't stop that Klan, we'll stop it ourselves.

So I don't believe in violence - that's why I want to stop it.

And you can't stop it with love. So, we only mean vigorous action in self-defense and that vigorous action we feel we're justified in initiating by any means necessary. The press call us racist and people who are "violent in reverse." This is how they psycho you. They make you think that if you try to stop the Klan from lynching you, you're practicing "violence in reverse."

I hear a lot of you parrot: "I don't want to be a Ku Klux Klan in reverse." Well, if a criminal comes around your house with his gun, it doesn't make you a robber because you grab your gun and run him out.

The press calls us "racist in reverse." Why, this is insane. With skillful manipulating, they're able to make the victim look like the criminal, and the criminal look like the victim. That's crazy.

If you tell them what is now in store, they'll think you're crazy for sure. But this year will be the longest and hottest and bloodiest year of them all. It has to be, not because you want it to be, or I want it to be, or we want it to be, but because the conditions that created those explosions are still here; the conditions are still here.

You can't say that you're not going to have an explosion when you leave the conditions, the ingredients, still here.

As long as those ingredients, explosive ingredients, remain, then you're going to have the potential for explosion on your hands.

→ inevitability

Guiding Question: How does the speaker employ rhetorical techniques to provoke the audience to take action?